*The Holocaust has the dubious distinction
of being the best documented genocide in the world.
For deniers to be right, all survivors would have to be wrong.*

- Deborah E. Lipstadt | US Special Envoy for Monitoring and Combating Antisemitism, American historian and author.

*"For the public square,
Traces teaches about the impact of trauma
and subsequent generations and how writing/speaking is a vehicle
for healing or at least coming to terms.
In the classroom,
the film is an excellent teaching tool,
complementing courses on the Holocaust,
genocide and also psychology,
creative writing and filmmaking."*

What was it like to grow up with parents who survived the Holocaust?

Who is responsible for ensuring the Holocaust
and its generational impact are remembered?

Traces explores these questions, giving voice to the children of survivors.

The resilient "Second Generation" share their parents' remarkable survival stories and reveal how the Holocaust has impacted their own lives.

Traces inspires all of us to make certain these stories are remembered.
